

Reptiles & Amphibians

Reptiles and amphibians have been sleeping all winter because they are cold-blooded and get their heat from their environment. Some are still sleeping! Be a detective today to discover where reptiles and amphibians are hiding!

CRAFT & GAME: Camouflage Snakes-snakes come in many color patterns to be able to blend in to the ecosystem they live in. Use markers, crayons, tape or any other type of craft material to design a snake that could blend into the nature near your home. Take your snake outside and play a game with it. Hide your snake and have someone try to find it; once they find it let them hide it for you.

EXPLORATION: Frogs are some of the first amphibians to come out of their winter slumber. Listen closely to find out if frogs live in water near you. As you walk through nature look in sunny spots on the ground for frogs, snakes or lizards that are trying to get heat.

Wood Frog

